

Act 1

Exposition

The movie opens up with a short explanation of current events which specifically are about an alien race that has arrived on earth but has become stranded and are unable to move their spaceship, this is narrated by this employee we see here who is the main protagonist of this film. It also goes a bit in depth as to how the aliens have been treated thus far.

Inciting Incident

The employee and the organization he works for is tasked with essentially cleaning out the camps that the aliens are staying in and have to report and remove anything alarming. The protagonist eventually finds an alien tool that is seemingly harmless but he accidentally activates it and he is sprayed with alien technology.

Plot point

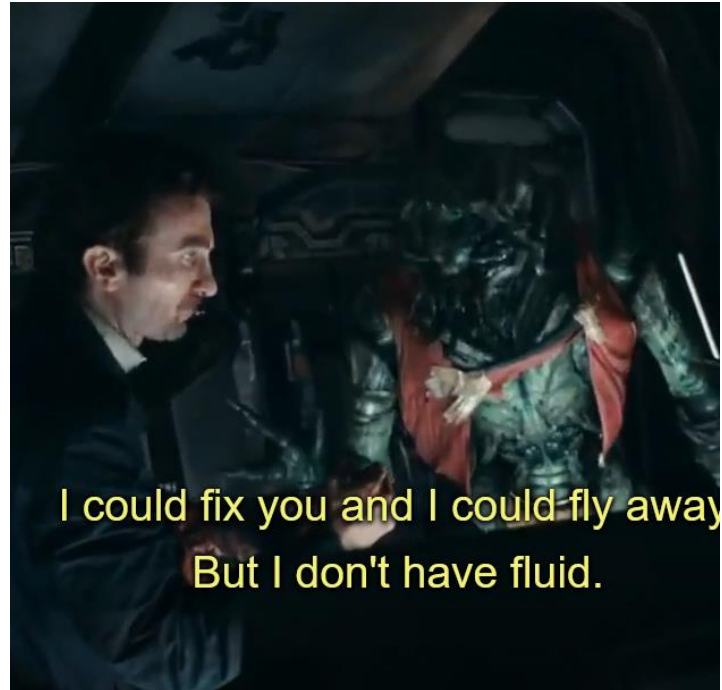

Most of the aliens we have seen have been very aggressive and don't have high intelligence, either that or they just don't care about anything. However, we are introduced to this alien who not only appears to be more intelligent than the rest, but also has an offspring with him, which is the first we have seen throughout the movie.

It is also quickly known that the liquid that sprayed onto our protagonist has begun to transform him into one of the aliens themselves. The company he works for immediately took him away from his family and began running tests on him and seeing if the alien weaponry (which is explained to only work under the hands of the aliens) can work with the new transformed arm of our protagonist.

Fun and Games

Our protagonist manages to barely escape and flees to the camps where the aliens are staying, by stroke of luck he manages to run into the intelligent alien he had met beforehand, it turns out the device that he found that sprayed him with the fluid belong to this alien and they were going to use it to refuel a small ship they had and try to fly back up to the mothership and head home. The alien also explained that he could fix the protagonist using the medical machines that the mothership has. This gives the protagonist a reason to aid this alien since he wants to return to a normal life and then they begin to figure out a way to recover the technology that our protagonist turned into the company.

Mid-point

Our protagonist and his new alien ally have infiltrated the company and are trying to get down to the levels that have all of the alien equipment and recover the artifact they lost.

They form a small bond but mostly are just working together because of a common interest.

Dark Night of the Soul

Our protagonist ends up abandoning Chris and makes it back to the ship himself. Our protagonist tried to make the small ship fly but has a conflict with Chris' child and ultimately crashes the ship

Eventually the duo are then caught not only by what is essentially the mafia of the aliens who have a black market. They intend to kill our protagonist because they think it'll benefit them in some way.

Twist

The mafia underestimates our protagonist and did not expect him to be able to use the alien weaponry that they had laying around in the room they had him in, he manages to get a hold of a big machine that allows him to easily defeat the mafia and escape, he runs into Chris (who is the intelligent alien) and tries to protect him and cover for him so that they can return to their ship.

Climax

Chris end's up making it back to the ship and manages to get it up and running, our protagonist unfortunately gets caught up with and has his mech destroyed. It seems like he is going to be killed when he is saved by other aliens who simply just wanted that man dead, since he is kind of a menace among the aliens and treats them like garbage.

Resolution

Chris manages to make it back to the mother ship and ultimately leaves without our protagonist, because our protagonist basically sacrificed himself to allow Chris to escape.

The last thing we see is a short scene that shows what our protagonist has become after some time. We also see that the company is closed down and a new district has opened up for the aliens to live in. We see our protagonist making a metal rose from garbage, which he left a similar one on the doorstep of his wife's home. And that is how the story ends, our protagonist being fully transformed into the alien and is left hoping and waiting for the return of Chris.
